

Why become an

All's Well

Volunteer?

- You will gain transferable confidence and skills in engaging with the public and working with local heritage and history
- The free training programme and experience that you gain will look great on job and University applications
- Volunteering makes you feel good! All's Well will help you to connect, learn, engage and be active whilst giving to others too. These are the proven five ways to wellbeing.
- History is all about stories; if you enjoy hearing, discovering and telling stories this is a fantastic chance to develop your love of narrative and story-telling skills, and to get different voices heard as part of history.

All's Well is a Thriving Communities funded project promoting wellbeing and health through heritage. All's Well brings together Exeter Community Centre with St Nicholas Priory and Devon & Exeter Medical Heritage Trust, and builds on the exciting work of Our Big Project. Volunteering with All's Well is your chance to be a part of history in the telling.

Exeter Community Centre (including the Mulberry Café) and St Nicholas Priory (Exeter's oldest building) are delighted to be open again to the public. Come and visit to find out more about the wonderful heritage of our buildings, and the extraordinary stories they hold and how you can get involved.
